

Celebrate BLACK HISTORY MONTH

STARK  LIBRARY

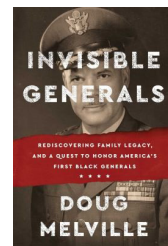

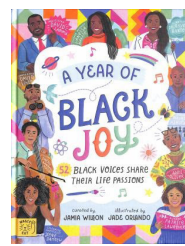

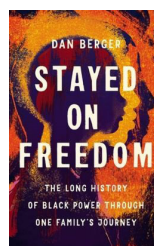

In February, we observe Black History Month, recognizing the achievements and lasting impact of African Americans throughout our nation's history. Across generations, Black Americans have shaped our country in countless ways, contributing to business, science, the military, the arts, and every part of society, often while advocating for equal rights.

We honor these stories through art, storytelling, speakers, and curated book lists selected by your favorite librarians.

Reading Material

Browse the Library and explore our monthly displays, many of which highlight books by Black authors in recognition of their lasting impact on history, culture, and storytelling.

Be sure to check out our Black History Month booklist, available on our website at StarkLibrary.org/staffpicks
